ANNUAL DINNER SPEAKER ANNOUNCEMENT

Introducing... JOE DELOSS

Joe DeLoss is building a fried chicken empire by changing perspectives on HR and workforce development. With ten years and dozens of ideas behind him, Joe has now struck a nerve with his newest adventure, Hot Chicken Takeover. The restaurant concept sells delicious fried chicken in an environment reminiscent of a family reunion. HCT has earned critical acclaim as a breakout brand in its segment and is currently taking over the Midwest.

To support expansion of the concept, Joe relies on an unconventional workforce and HR strategy. The majority of his team members have experienced significant adversity in their past – ranging from addiction, to homelessness, or incarceration. This is a message Hot Chicken Takeover isn't shy on communicating. For Joe, this approach is far from charitable; it's the lynchpin of HCT's success.

Joe's dedication to fair-chance employment, social entrepreneurship, and vulnerable leadership has allowed him to impact the lives of thousands of people. As Joe continues to build, he is sharing his story with national audiences across the country – including The Today Show, Forbes, Harvard Business School, Politico, the Rachael Ray Show and more.

MACC OPEN HOUSE

Professional Women's Roundtable

Paint & Sip

The Chamber ladies met for a special Professional Women's Roundtable with a Paint & Sip event on December 7th 2021 at Jeremiah's Coffee House to create a painting of the historic Harmar Bridge.

The paintings design was a team effort between Chamber President Kelsy Eaton and Office Manager Victoria Freeman-Powell.

The event was attended by a variety of professionals from all over Washington County. Each attendee brought a unique flair to the project!

A little known fun fact is that Kelsy actually has a minor in Art from Fairmont State University!

MOVSC January Update

Electrical safety is every bit as important at home as it is in the workplace, especially as children are easily exposed to this unseen hazard. Parents must remain vigilant in identifying potential hazards so that risks can be minimized. One problem encountered particularly in older homes is the lack of Ground Fault Circuit Interrupters (GFCIs). These devices detect undesirable currents in an electrical circuit and automatically disconnect power to that circuit.

Electrocution is the cause of approximately 10 percent of industrial fatalities and scores of home injuries/fatalities. Many of these casualties could be eliminated with the use of GFCIs. GFCIs should be tested periodically to determine they are working properly. If you find a GFCI not working properly, have a qualified technician diagnose and correct the problem.

Hazards of Electricity

- Shock
- Burns
- Arc-blast
- Explosions
- Fires
- Electrocution

Electrical Protective Devices

- Insulation
- Guarding
- Grounding
- Double-insulated equipment
- Protective covers and shields

Where GFCIs Should be Located

- At outlets near a sink (kitchens, bathrooms)
- At outlets where high voltage will be used
- Where there is risk of contact with water
- Outdoor service

MOVSC Monthly Meeting - January 19th from 11:00 to 12:00 PM via Zoom Webinar with David Vandergrift, Ohio Bureau of Workers Compensation on OSHA Recordkeeping

PRESENTS: MEMBER MENTIONS

In 2021, local entrepreneur and business leader Duane Huck launched his latest venture as a John Maxwell Certified Coach, Teacher, and Speaker. His business, Elevate Influence, is a culmination of Duane's years of experience in management and business ownership in the Marietta area.

Starting out as one of the youngest plant managers in the industry, Duane has gathered over 30 years of management and leadership skills at Globe Metallurgical in Beverly, Ohio. In 2007, he and his wife along with another local couple opened a staple of Marietta's food culture, Stoked Coffee. Just 10 years later, the two families opened a second location in Parkersburg, WV. After doing his own research about the John Maxwell group, Duane felt lead to impart his knowledge of the business world and influence others.

The John Maxwell company offers workshops, seminars, and coaching to individuals, organizations, and companies around the world on topics of leadership and personal growth. Their program seeks to benefit a wide range of professionals in their respective fields, including executives, small business owners, pastors, freelancers, speakers, nonprofits, and much more. Individuals like Duane who are passionate about influencing others to achieve success in their fields complete thorough training to become a Certified Teacher, Coach, and Speaker.

This past month, the Marietta Area Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Marietta-Washington County Convention and Visitors Bureau attended a leadership retreat hosted by Elevate Influence. Held at the beautiful Burr Oak Lodge and Conference Center in Glouster, Ohio, the leadership retreat lasted from Sunday evening until Monday afternoon.

The training was full of great information and was delivered eloquently and with passion. The topic of Cooperation versus Collaboration was covered regarding team efforts, which is vital for every organization, no matter the size. The leadership training workshop is a must for small businesses as well as larger corporations. With decades of experience to back his presentation, Duane pulls from those experiences to effectively convey the message of John Maxwell's teachings.

To book Elevate Influence for your next retreat or training opportunity, you can reach out to the Marietta Area Chamber of Commerce to get personally connected with Duane or send him an email at duanehuck@elevateinfluence.net. Follow him on Facebook @duanehuckisleading.
